

It's literally a life saver! A lock box is a rectangular plastic box that is affixed to your home, near the front door. It holds a spare key to the door, in case of an emergency.

Local fire departments sell these to homeowners, install them, and place your house key inside the box. They are the only ones who can get into the lock box and will only use it if needed in an emergency. This saves them valuable time and money for the homeowner, because if the door is locked, they will either have to remove the hinges on the door, or break the door down to reach you in an emergency.

You only need to contact your local fire department to secure one.

When I had my stroke, I didn't have one of these, but wish I had as our front door was locked, BUT the back door wasn't! It's there now, but I don't plan to need it in the future!
